STATE HAS 2 MORE MEDICAL EXPERTS TO PUT ON STAND

Testimony Withheld By Prosecution Until Closing Stages

DEFENSE TAKEN BY SURPRISE

Chemistry Professor Is First Witness At Nashville

(Associated Press)

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 4—Two more medical experts remained to be called by the state when the trial of D. C. Stephenson, Earl Klenck and Earl Gentry, the three men who are charged with murder in connection with the death of Madge Oberholtzer, was resumed in Hamilton county circuit court today.

Dr. H. O. Mertz, who examined vital organs of the young woman, after she had died from poisoning, after her alleged abduction last April and Dr. John H. Warfel, pathologist at the Methodist hospital in Indianapolis, another who participated in the post-mortem examination, were being held back by the state until such time as it was felt their testimony would be needed.

The unexpected turn of the prosecution, in presenting testimony to the effect that blood poisoning from wounds Miss Oberholtzer is alleged to have received at the hands of Stephenson was instrumental in causing her death, has added interest to the case.

The action showed, for the first time, on what the state would base its charge of first degree murder. Miss Oberholtzer took poison following her alleged abduction to Hammond and apparently died from its effects.

Physicians, however, have testified that evidence of blood poisoning was found in the examination of several organs and that it was a contributing cause to the girl's death.

Dr. R. N. Harger, a chemistry professor at the University of Indiana school of medicine, was the first witness today, being cross examined by Mr. Inman, chief counsel for the defense.

Anybody who lived 29 days after taking poison of the sort Madge Oberholtzer took, and who died on the thirtieth day, probably died from something else than the self administered poison.

He was the first witness of the day and the fourth medical expert called by the state in the trial of D. C. Stephenson, Earl Gentry and Earl Klenck in connection with the death of Miss Madge Oberholtzer.

The state alleges the girl took poison in a Hammond hotel after her abduction and assault by the defendants.

Dr. Warbelt testified he made blood examinations of Miss Oberholtzer after she had been brought home. His testimony, like that of his three professional predecessors, was extremely technical. He was preceded today by Dr. R. N. Harger, Indiana University, whose cross examination began late yesterday.

General Houghton Dies In Montgomery

(Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 4—Growing weaker through the night Lieutenant General H. D. Houghton, army of Tennessee, confederate veteran died early this afternoon at his home at Morning View.

He was stricken with paralysis yesterday afternoon and physicians held out little hope for his recovery. He was 81 years of age.

General Houghton is said to have been in bad health for the past several months, but was able to attend the reunion of the Alabama division at Tuscaloosa last month.

Democrats Win Victory In Two Major Battles

(Associated Press)

The democrats swept to victory yesterday in the New Jersey governor's race and the New York city elections.

In less spectacular contests the republicans elected a mayor of Boston for the first time since 1907, won hands down in Pennsylvania state and municipal elections; regained control of the municipal machinery in a number of Indiana cities and, apparently, had elected a mayor of Louisville, Ky.

In the only two congressional contests, each party held his own, the republicans retaining control of the third New Jersey district and the democrats remaining successful in the third Kentucky district.

Virginia, the only state, beside New Jersey, to elect a governor, voted a straight democratic slate into office. John M. Purcell won out for state treasurer, over John Bassett, republican, in a contest that attracted more than usual attention because Purcell's affiliation with the Catholic church was brought into the campaign.

The Ku Klux Klan became the chief issue in the non-partisan mayoralty election in Detroit with Mayor John W. Smith apparently returned a victor over Charles Bowles, the Klan supported candidate.

Prohibition was the out and out issue in the New Jersey race, but in the victory of Harry Moore, democrat over State Senator Arthur Whitney, who had the support of the anti-saloon league, the democrats pointed to the overturning of the 370,000 plurality given President Coolidge last year.

While Moore rolled up a plurality of 40,000, largely through the heavy vote cast for him in his home county, Hudson, the victory was not as sweeping as some democratic leaders had predicted, their forecast running as high as 100,000.

The democratic victory in New York was overwhelming. Senator James J. Walker defeating Frank Waterman by 401,581 votes out of a total of slightly more than a million cast. With Walker the democrats elected all five borough presidents, a president of the board of aldermen, comptroller, all four district attorneys and a long list of lesser officials.

Like Cornuche, the proprietors of the gambling plants at Nice, Menton and other Riviera resorts feel that no real competition can be made to Monte Carlo, as long as the little principality enjoys the exclusivity of the roulette privileges.

The Monte Carlo expenses in the last fiscal year amounted to less than 50,000,000, leaving a net profit of 63,876,310 francs, two-thirds of which only were paid out in dividends to the shareholders. They received 600 francs as a dividend for a 500 franc share, nominal value.

The balance of the money was expended in the construction of a new building for the installation of the Sporting Club, a new cinema house and theatre and the erection of a summer casino at Larvotto. Ten new tennis courts have also been set out, six at the Festa Tennis club and four at the Condamine.

Enthusiastic Plans To Push Year's Work Mapped Out

Morris Ford, well known local business man, is the new chairman of the board of stewards of the Central Methodist church, having been elected to that office at an enthusiastic business meeting of the board.

Other officers of the board were named as follows: C. W. Matthews, vice chairman; Hubert Ross, treasurer; S. G. Forlines, secretary.

At the meeting of the board, plans for the year's work were discussed and continued growth and expansion of the church and its activities is expected. All members of the board were enthusiastic over the outlook for the year.

Mr. Ford, the new chairman, succeeds W. H. Day, under whose leadership splendid advancement was made.

VESSEL SUNK IN CHINO-JAPANESE WAR TO BE REFLOATED BY JAPAN

TOKYO, Nov. 4—The British transport "Kowshing," which was sunk by Admiral Togo off the coast of Jinsen, Korea, during the Chino-Japanese war in 1894, is to be refloated by the Japanese navy. Expert divers are preparing for the work which will require about two months it is thought.

The transport is lying on the sea bottom at a depth of 24 fathoms and has on board silver bullion valued at about 1,500,000 yen.

County Folks Will Pay Higher Rate For Present Year

HIGHER RATE IN EFFECT IN ALBANY

Payments Have Been Slow To Date, Say Officials

A doleful note is being sounded today to citizens of Albany and Decatur and Morgan county as the time for city, county and state taxes becomes limited, becoming delinquent on the first of the year. Books are now open at the offices in the Morgan county court house, at the city hall, Decatur, and at Albany.

Discussing tax rates today it was stated that the county and state rates for Albany and Decatur amount to $2.00 per $100 valuation on personal property and real estate. The rate in the county amounts to $2.10 as the remainder of the country, other than the cities of Albany and Decatur, recently voted an additional school tax by an overwhelming vote.

City rates differ somewhat, with the City of Albany rate going this year to a rate of $1.10 and the city of Decatur remaining at $.80 per $100 valuation of property, personal and real. Payment of taxes up until this time has been slow, with only a few people taking advantage of the efficient service which the various offices are able to render at this time.

Explaining the reason for the raise in the tax rate of the city of Albany, Henry Hartung, city clerk, today declared that the city would not have to raise its tax rates if the property valuations were given correctly. He explained that an amendment to the constitution of the state of Alabama passed on November 7, 1922, was now in effect for the first time, raising the tax rate for the municipality to an additional .30 cents per $100 valuation. The following amendment was voted on November 7, 1922:

The following municipal corporations: Jasper, Cordova, Dora, Oxford, Talladega, Citronelle, Girard, Albany and Tuscaloosa through their respective constituted governing authorities may levy and collect a rate of taxation on the property situated therein, not exceeding in the total of any one year, one per centum of the value of such property as assessed

FREEZES STOP LATER COTTON

Unseasonably Cool In Alabama As Rains Delay Picking

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Crop and weather conditions in southern states for the week ending yesterday were summarized today as follows:

Favorable conditions continued for gathering the cotton crop in most sections of the belt, where harvests has not been completed. There was also considerable lowering of grade and damage by rain to unpicked cotton and in the northwestern portion of the belt by freezing.

The growth of late cotton was stopped by freezing weather in the northwestern and much of the western portion of Texas, while picking and ginning were delayed by unfavorable weather, with some further lowering of grade in Oklahoma.

Much damage was done to immature bolls by the freeze and picking was greatly retarded, while growth of late plants was stopped in Arkansas.

In the Western portion in the latter state, conditions for picking were somewhat better. In Tennessee the rains of the last three weeks have been very damaging to unpicked cotton and that remaining in the fields in the central-gulf states was unfavorably affected.

Rains interfered with picking also in the northeastern portion of the belt, with some lowering of grades. Citrus fruits are maturing rapidly in all sections and shipments have begun.

Tobacco stripping made good advance in the Ohio Valley and Tennessee, while fall trucks in Southeastern states was favorable affected by increased soil moisture. Trucks need more warmth and sunshine in the west gulf area but in Louisiana a continuation of cool weather would be favorable for sugar cane.

In Alabama it is unseasonably cool. Rains have damaged open cotton remaining in the fields in scattered areas and delayed completion of picking and also the harvesting of corn.

Lee B. Morris Stricken Here In Hotel Room

Lee B. Morris, of Baltimore, Md., early this afternoon was at the Benevolent hospital in a serious condition, after having suffered an attack of uremia in his room at a local hotel this morning. Dr. J. Y. Hamil, well known local physician, was summoned at once, and after giving the man a preliminary examination, had him removed immediately to the hospital, where he was reported unconscious this afternoon.

Morris was said to have left a call for five o'clock this morning, and he was called at that time. Some time later, heavy breathing was heard in his room and an investigation made. The man was found in the bathroom, where he apparently had fallen. His eye was bruised, it was believed, by the force of the fall. He was unconscious.

FENNEL HONORED ON COLLEGE PAPER

Local Student Now Is Advertising Chief Of Gold And Black

Richard A. Fennell, of Albany, member of the junior class at Birmingham-Southern College and one of the 876 students enrolled for this session, was honored recently at college in election to the staff of the student weekly newspaper, the Gold and Black, serving as assistant advertising manager. The campus paper is said to be a most important feature of student life at Birmingham-Southern, the business and editorial ends of the publication being handled entirely by the students.

Fennell is also active in other phases of student affairs, being a member of the college minstrels, the biology club, dramatic club, the Fellowship Club, etc. He was president of the sophomore class last year, and won the deputation contest of the class. He is also assistant in bacteriology, being thus one of the junior faculty.

Birmingham-Southern College is rejoicing this week over the news of admission to the Association of American Universities, a fact carrying world-wide recognition, according to President Guy E. Snaveley, who states the honor is the greatest the college has received during his administration since 1921.

Graduates from Birmingham-Southern may now go to any university in the world and enter in full standing. The honor came as the result of the rapid progress of the college lately in enrollment, endowment, and the building program. The institution has had the rating of "A-grade" for some years by membership in the American Association and the Southern Association of Colleges and now has received the great recognition of being one of the few colleges selected from these groups for membership in the Association of American Universities.

Burned Hulk Of Yacht Visited By Captain Of Schooner

STATE OFFICIAL AMONG MISSING

No Bodies Are Washed Ashore with Wreckage Yet, Says Report

(Associated Press)

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 4—Definite information that the yacht Bunny Third, carrying prominent men from Wilmington, Del., has been burned at sea, was brought to Savannah by Captain Davis, of Norfolk, commander of the schooner, Mary A. Sharpe, which made port today.

Captain Davis reported to the commander of the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Yamacraw that he visited the burned hulk of the yacht at 3:45 o'clock Saturday, October 24, ten miles from Murrells Inlet and three miles off-shore.

He said his schooner stood by throughout the afternoon and made a thorough investigation. The craft was identified by the letter "M 10-14" and on each bow was a rabbit's head in black and gilt. All decks were burned away and there was only a small part of the forward deck remaining. No bodies were found on the craft.

SOUTHPORT, S. C., Nov. 4—The belief is growing here that the boat found burned two miles from Georgetown, S. C., was Bunny Third, on which W. G. Taylor, secretary of state of Delaware and R. B. Pusey of Wilmington, Del., left here on the morning of October 23.

No further information as to the fate of the boat's occupants has been received.

The 33-foot craft left here about eight o'clock on the morning of October 23 for Florida. It was the intention of those on board to go to Florida by inland route, but this route is through the open sea from Southport to Georgetown.

GEORGETOWN, S. C., Nov. 4—Reports received here today the small yacht burned off Murrell's Inlet several days ago, which may have been the missing Bunny, Third, is ashore on North Island, a few miles north of here.

So far as known here no bodies have been washed ashore with the wreckage.

MERCHANT CALLED TO DOOR AND SHOT

Load Of Birdshot Hits Johnston In Face; He May Live

(Associated Press)

SHORTER, Ala., Nov. 4—W. O. Johnston, merchant and lumberman of Cubahatchie, about six miles from here, is in a serious condition at the home of his brother-in-law, J. A. Boyd, of Shorter, from wounds inflicted Tuesday morning with a charge of birdshot in his face.

It is expected that he will be permanently blind as several of the shots penetrated the eye balls. The injured man stated, after being found, that he had been called to the rear porch of his store about seven o'clock Monday night by a strange voice and on stepping out on the porch was shot directly in the face.

It is thought that robbery was the motive as the mill payroll at the place was supposed to have been hidden in his store. Officers are investigating but no arrests have been made.

"Bobbed Hair"
A DAZZLING MYSTERY STORY BY
TWENTY FAMOUS AUTHORS

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore was to announce her engagement tonight—either to Bingham Carrington or Saltonstall Cabot Adams—or be disinherited by her aunt. But instead of being in Connemara's Connecticut home Connemara is now at the edge of the sound about to board a ferry for Long Island with David Lacy, whom she saw for the first time only an hour or so ago. It's a foggy, stormy night—"a great night for bootleggers"—as the ferryman has just observed. Back home, auntie, Bing and Salt are all worrying.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

Bing would have died rather than let his eyes follow Miss Celimena's to the slow-moving hands of the old clock, but all the same he knew at the precise instant she did when they pointed, after centuries had passed, to five minutes of twelve.

Whether the entire, queerly garbed assemblage had been watching the clock also, there are, of course, no means of knowing, but the fact remains that there was a sudden, concerted halt of the dancers, and—after a straggling diminuendo wail from the blaring saxophone, and an uncertain thump or two from the drums—the orchestra followed their example and fell into abrupt and motionless silence.

A hundred pairs of eyes were turned expectantly from one entrance of the ballroom to the other, in search of a slim, straight little figure in the white robes of a Dominican Sister, minus the veil and head covering, coming to end the evening's play with the all-important announcement.

Poppy Glenn in particular, seemed unusually nervous, twisting her prettiest neck to crane inquisitively over first one plump bare shoulder and then the other in her efforts to keep both doors in sight at the same time.

"If Connemara bobbed her hair it meant she was engaged to me!"

A full minute ticked itself away laboriously, and the strain grew. There were stifled giggles here and there in the room, and an impatient tapping of high heels that had the restless, staccato tempo of castanets. Then, suddenly, as if in response to his cue, in the right-hand doorway appeared the stately figure of Judson, Miss Celimena's white-headed butler, carrying a small tissue-paper package in his hands.

And with the eyes of the room upon him, straight up to Saltonstall Cabot Adams went Judson, as unhurried and matter-of-course as though about to announce that dinner was served, and laid the package in Salt's astonished hand.

"Miss Connemara told me early this evening I was to deliver it at midnight, sir," quoth Judson, and his part played, departed discreetly.

Bing with his face as white as Saltonstall's was scarlet, held his chin high by sheer instinct of pride, for, like the other man, he was past conscious analysis of his actions.

Poppy, who happened to be beside Salt, leaned forward with impertinent assurance and read aloud the clear black handwriting of the package's superscription: "Saltonstall Cabot Adams, Esq. According to Agreement, Constance Mary Moore, June 30th, 12 p. m."

"My gracious, but she's being legal and exact. Congratulations, Salt, old top! Now hurry and open it up!"

It is probable, so great was Miss Glenn's curiosity and eagerness, that if her suggestion had not been promptly acted upon by the successful guinea, she would have snatched the little package out of his hand and opened it then and there herself.

But, recovering somewhat from his astonishment at the girl's energetic command, Salt ripped off the silver ribbon tied about the small, limp white bundle, and rather cautiously began to unroll the paper covering.

A little gasp of released breaths went up about him as a long, silky something, sinuous as if actually alive, warmly red—no, auburn, excuse us, Connemara—with surface sheen of gold where the light touched it, lay across his open palm, the discarded tissue-paper wrapping slipping to the floor at his feet. A thick, deliciously curling lock of Connemara's famous hair, clipped off by vandal shears, and then romantically and daintily tied up in tissue paper and silver ribbons and sent to her lover, for all the world like the heroines of picturesque but out-of-date days when Knighthood was in flower.

And Connemara the most up-to-the-minute and rebellious of moderns too! Still, it undoubtedly was a dramatic touch and went rather well with the fantastic costumes of the audience.

They broke into a storm of applause that was almost hysterical in its relief at the ending of the strain. And Salt, carried out of his usual grave pomposity of manner by this proof of his triumph, forgot that he hated the limelight, and actually had made a stiff little speech before he could stop himself.

"Ladies and Gentlemen," he said seriously—"Ladies and Gentlemen, it has been, very fittingly, left to me by Miss Connemara Moore to make the evening's anticipated and happy announcement."

After which he went on and made it, formally, correctly, as one who was at once a Saltonstall, a Cabot, and an Adams might be expected to do, and it was neither a bad enough nor good enough speech to be remembered ten minutes after he made it by anyone present, it had not been for the unforeseen denouement just before the text to the last sentence as he had it outlined in his mind.

Somebody's very muscular hand closed unexpectedly on Salt's arm, and spun him right about face with a suddenness that jarred his teeth together violently.

The voice of Bing Carrington, entirely shorn of his lazy Virginian drawl, fell in furious accents upon the close and startled air of the packed ballroom.

"How in thunder," it inquired with ominous restraint, "do you get that way? Didn't you take in the very plainly expressed agreement that if Connemara bobbed her hair it meant she was engaged to me?"

With a quick gesture he snatched the auburn lock from the other's hand, and held it aloft before all the eyes.

"Well?" demanded young Mr. Bingham Carrington, his chin up at least an inch and a half as he faced the room with his challenge.

"Why—why—" It was Poppy Glenn, on the verge of hysteria from sheer excitement. "That was the agreement. Of course it was, Bing!"

Stunned silence—broken giggles—a circle of staring eyes—

"It," said Bing, in his most magnificent manner, which could be very magnificent indeed when he had an occasion to rise to, "have the honor of announcing, for Miss Moore and myself, our engagement." His eyes gleamed with reckless laughter that picked up answering smiles, warm and friendly, from those nearest him. "I'm waiting for congratulations, everybody, and it'll take a darn lot of them to make up for what I went through when old Judson marched over and handed Salt that package," he wound up in an ingenuously youthful outburst.

"Perhaps you can explain why, in that remarkable eventuality," Salt asked icily, "Connemara sent the package to me?"

"To let you know you were out of it, of course," Bing Carrington said, with easy assurance, still holding on to Connemara's disputed curl. "And possibly, too, because she's a generous, warm-hearted child who's sorry to hurt anyone, she sent it to you for a little keepsake to remember her by. Perfectly natural and simple thing to reason out for any one who understands Connie Moore." He shrugged, as if finished with the subject forever.

As Other Ex-Rulers Enjoy Ease Sultan Fights Off Poverty

SAN REMO—Sultan Mohammed VI the last ruler and caliph of Turkey, is struggling to maintain himself and his small household at this quiet retreat on borrowed money or on charity funds sent him by relatives and former supporters.

While other former European monarchs and nobles are living in comparative luxury in foreign lands, Mohammed VI must make repeated calls for assistance to save him and his modest retinue from poverty.

The aged Sultan recently was so hard up that he was obliged to dispense with his young son's German nurse. Soon after that he was threatened with eviction if he failed to pay his rent. Things looked black for the once wealthy and influential head of the Moslem world, when his sister saved the situation by pawning a diamond ring and a rope of pearls.

Scarcely had this debt been settled when the Sultan's nephew came to Paris and squandered half the sum realized on his mother's jewels, which was said to be a million francs.

A fresh call probably will be made upon the former monarch's relatives but many of them are in as great need as the ex-Sultan himself. For example, Prince Ziaeddin, eldest son of the Sultan's predecessor, Mohammed V, is in the last stages of destitution. He and his wife and two daughters are facing eviction for non-payment of rent. Friends have started a subscription in their behalf.

The situation of the other 250 members of the Imperial family of Turkey who were driven from Constantinople is even more acute than that of the Sultan. They are scattered in different parts of Europe and live only by the charity of their friends. When they were expelled from Turkey they were allowed to take about $150. Their property was nationalized and their jewels and property confiscated. These fugitives include 35 Princes and Princesses of the House of Osman, three Sheikhs-ul-Islam, a former Grand Vizier, many cabinet ministers, two Court Chamberlains, half a score of editors, many army and navy officers and a number of high government officials.

One of these Turkish noblemen, Djemal Bey, a former Minister of the interior, finding it impossible to make a living in Europe, returned to Turkey. He surrendered to the authorities, was sent to Angora, and immediately tried for treason. He was found guilty and was executed. Many like him would like to return to their homeland rather than starve abroad, but know they will suffer the same fate, and so they continue to live in poverty in European cities.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

IN MEMORIAM

The members of Albany Lodge, No. 491, A. F. & A. M., with sincere sorrow, record the death of late Brother Chas. C. Pfaff, his tragic end on Thursday, October 8th, 1925. We deeply regret, and offer our tenderest sympathy to his bereaved wife and little son in this their saddest experience in life. Brother Pfaff was a most active and helpful Mason, always ready to do his part well in the Lodge and among his fellow-men. He exhibited a truly congenial and lovable spirit, and was of a happy disposition, delightfully pleasant to be with. We shall truly miss him from our ranks, and daily association.

To his widow we tender our sincere condolence, and say that we do share this sorrow with her. Words cannot express the sadness of our hearts, and we commend her to our Heavenly Father, the Supreme Architect of the universe, who giveth life and comfort, and will make all things work together for good to all those who serve him in sincerity and in truth. We say to her, have faith in God, so that in his own good time a happy re-union may come again in the land that is fairer than day.

By order of the worshipful master this letter of sympathy is sent under seal of the Lodge to his widow, and a copy ordered published in the Albany-DeCATUR Daily, and a copy kept for record in Lodge No. 491.

At a meeting of the friends of Oscar W. Underwood at the Decatur City Hall last night, an Underwood club was formed.

Mesdames L. A. Neill and J. T. Jones are attending the convention of Federated Women's clubs at Dothan.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Irwin, a fine little daughter.

Mrs. John Proctor will be hostess to the Woman's Music Study club tomorrow afternoon at three.

Today's business, like today's thoughts, are of little worth unless there is some bearing on the morrow.

It seems almost like the work of Old Man Retribution himself that Dutch Anderson was slain with his own pistol.

If the newspapers' permanent bump of optimism should suddenly go dead, there is no telling just how dead the town would become.

The same old story of a man with too much an opinion of himself and his power has been retold in the trial proceedings at Indianapolis.

Labor conditions locally are declared to be in very good shape, the merchants are feeling the change with a good increase in their late fall business.

Colonel Mitchell, at last reports, had not blamed the army and navy football defeats of last Saturday on "criminal negligence" on the part of the service men's coaching staffs.

"How long, Oh Lord, How Long," will be the name of the next song dedicated to the presidency of the United States. We suggest that the Muscle Shoals settlement advocates be the authors.

Florida's press agent is working well. Press dispatches now carry an account of the romance of a government official and a postal worker, who met on a Florida bus, and now have married.

Two bandits made their escape from a Miami banking house recently after robbing the bank of some $2,000. We did not know that it was necessary to resort to such tactics for the mere pittance of $2,000.

A Texas girl, 18 years of age, already married four times, is looking forward to her fifth leap into the sea of matrimony. That attitude may fit in with the letter of the marriage law, but it lacks a good deal of conforming to the spirit of the law.

While we should not like to hang up the record accredited to a local negro who was arrested Sunday, tried Monday, and sent to the penitentiary on Tuesday, still we cannot help but congratulate the Morgan county court for having swiftly rid the county of an expense.

The beauty of the work the Alabama Power company has done in improving the local gas plant has not been so much in the improvement of the grounds as it has been in the removal of the obnoxious odor which used to be so much in evidence along Lee street.

Along about Christmas time there is no greater service to which men can turn their hands than in the service of humanity, doing charity work where worthy cases are presented. This is the plan under which the Kiwanis club of Albany-Decatur is working at the present time—this is the plan which Kiwanians ask Albany-Decatur and Morgan county citizenship to respond to—is there any more noble work in which they might be busied? Morgan county has her needy families just as other counties and the folks are mighty glad to see the Kiwanians with their Christmas gifts. The Kiwanis must have the support of the people before the plan is a success. What is going to be your answer to them when you are solicited?

Morgan county cotton crop will soon be forgotten in the rush in Christmas buying, there will be no thought given to the origin of county money, we will all be getting our share, giving value in return for value to the farmer who elects to trade here where he has the best advantages offered him. Morgan county farmers have been criticised for a lack of diversification in their crop system, yet can a man be blamed for raising the product which he feels will pay him the greatest dividend in the long run? Does the merchant in the city turn to other business when he knows that the business he is in is paying him the best salary, giving him the best return for his investment? Morgan county farmers have had a prosperous year thus far, those who will hold on to their cotton will be further enriched, it is believed. The work of the farm agents and demonstration agents will tell later on when the farmer sees the advantages of diversification. At present however, we are glad that he has raised cotton and that he has kept Morgan county in the fore of the Valley counties with an estimated 35,000 to 45,000 bale crop for 1925.

The suggestion offered to the Albany City council that the principal thoroughfare of the city, Second Avenue, be paved, with the city and the property owners on the street bearing the expense, is an excellent idea provided the city council sees fit to undertake such a program, but the city will be setting a precedent to a certain extent which will be hard to overturn. The city will be paying for much more paving than that which is proposed for Second Avenue which would be entirely the correct thing if the city had the funds to do it with. It hasn't, so there is another course to be taken. The city council has chosen to wait until after the first of the year to repair the avenue, so at that time it is urged that the property owners be assessed with the costs of the paving and have the street paved. The property owners will see the matter in the right light, it is not their wish to hold up the progress of their city, it is not the desire of the merchant to turn trade away from his own door. The property owner has a period of ten years in which the payment for the improvement can be made. We do not see that such a plan will work a hardship upon them. The condition of the avenue is something which must soon be remedied, else the street must be classed with other impassable thoroughfares along our rural roads, though the latter cannot possibly be quite so rough.

WHY FEAR THE FLYING MACHINE WILL TAKE A TOLL OF LIVES?

With all this talk of the air becoming commercialized on the same scale as the automobile travel on the ground there are any number of people who predict that the air will take a vast toll of the lives of Americans who otherwise might have been safe on the ground. Yet, this is truly a debatable issue for only Monday twenty-one people were killed in the Southland alone as the result of automobile wrecks, train crashes and traffic accidents. On the yearly basis the aeroplane casualty list can not compare with the earthly toll, there is no comparison between the two.

During the past year reports show that perhaps sixty-three persons lost their lives in this nation in aero mishaps. Monday, twenty-one lives were snuffed out in the South alone. Is it likely that the aeroplane may take such a terrible toll after all?

Now there is still another view which people may take of the matter and naturally the view is one of pure conjecture. Some argue that the air has not had near so many accidents recorded against it as the earth for the reason that the ratio of people taking chances is not near so great. This is all very true, automobiles run over the face of America by the millions, every part of the country is crossed by railway lines, these are street car lines, paved trunk highways, interurbans, subways, ever sort of conveyance for carrying people. The air traffic is yet in its infancy it is true and when inexperienced people take to the air there is sure to be a climb in the casualty list. Just how great will be the climb, there is no telling, but if the air takes as great a toll as the earth the air will surely be the champion of champions with death acting as a second.

Those who now oppose the air industry are in the same class as those who opposed other inventions of years ago when the first steamboat was built, when the first driven train was placed upon an unruly track, they were the same class that laughed at the radio as an impossibility, yet we have it and we will keep on having these monsters of modern commerce year after year. Why fear a short jump in the air when we are in just as great danger when walking along the street? There is really no ground for fears for it seems that the earth is soon to be taken up in parking space, then there will be no place for others. The air must be utilized else the modern era has been conquered and the modern era has not yet shown signs at halting for anything.

THE WORK THE Y. M. C. A. HAS UNDERTAKEN MUST BE GIVEN CONSIDERATION.

At the recent session of the National council and the International Convention of the Y. M. C. A., held in Washington, D. C., it was determined that the Association for the next three years will devote a great part of its aims toward the training of the youth. It is not intended that the work for the older man will be slackened for the moment, but greater attention is to be paid to the rising generation.

President Coolidge addressed one of these sessions of the national council and stressed the importance of the work with the youths of America and a program including boys from the ages of 9 to 21 was undertaken by the organization. The program is far reaching in effect and should prove of untold good to the American people of the future.

The chief executive likewise scored the lethargic laity who sit in their pews on Sunday and expect the good words of the minister to do all the soul saving. The president believed that the work of the minister is to be reflected in the action which the members of his church take as well as the words which he utters on Sunday morning. The president, however, stressed the importance of work with the boys saying, "It is increasingly true that the hope of the future lies in the youth of the present."

How then is the public going to have a hand in the noble work of training youths for a better America in the future? Is there a work for the public to do? There certainly is, lots of it.

The public, the fathers and mothers, must first be willing to allow the Y. M. C. A. to train their sons. The mothers and fathers must not place in the mind of the boy the belief that the Association is here for the training of boys who are deficient in physical strength. No, that is not the part the Y. M. C. A. wishes to play. The association is training the spiritual youth as well as the physical and mental youth. Its purpose is three fold and the parent can gain the best results for their children by encouraging the lads in their work.

The Y. M. C. A. isn't an organization run on air, no worthwhile organization can run without finances, so each year the Association has an annual membership drive. It is true of these cities, as the citizenship well knows, but it is to be remembered that the greater, the more far reaching the work of the Y. M. C. A., the greater must be the co-operation of local people and the co-operation of local people this time is going to be measured in the total figure at the end of the membership drive. The drive is coming at an early date and it is going to offer a part for every citizen to play. If you want the best to be offered for your children then it is best that you get in line with the drive, push it, contribute to it, for it cannot succeed without your aid.

The "atmosphere," found all the shies wearing American horn-rimmed spectacles, fancy socks, and ready-made modern clothing. Only one was dressed as a shiek should be, and he was working for an American moving picture outfit.

THIS shows what American moving pictures do for American goods abroad. Our moving pictures, dominating everywhere, from Maine to China, create a market for American goods and build up American prosperity.

That is more than can be said for some queer Americans, interfering with moving picture development, seeking to prevent American concerns from becoming "too big," as though it were possible for any American concern, honestly managed, EVER to become TOO BIG.

MRS. MARY McCAULEY left her children, who had eaten nothing, after they had stopped crying, and gone to sleep, in a cold tenement room with a few burlap bags over them.

She took one bag and a hammer, at one o'clock in the morning, crept along the streets of New York, a fairly prosperous city, and using the bag to deaden the sound, she broke open a grocer's plate glass window and hastily gathered together an armful of food. At that moment a policeman laid his hand on her shoulder.

When she appeared in court, one hundred and fifty people actually shed tears at her plight so the judge let her go with a warning.

THAT doesn't happen often, unless you have brains enough to steal an oil reserve or a railroad. In that case you don't need a hammer or a burlap bag. A cabinet officer and a convenient judge—one to steal the property and the other to deaden the sound are the best "tools."

In CHINA, formerly, when crime annoyed the emperor or empress, the accused person was promptly executed, sometimes by sawing in two the whole length of the body. AFTER the execution came careful investigation of the matter. Sometimes, inevitably, the saved in two persons was proved innocent, but what could you do about that?

THE administration seems to be giving a fairly good Chinese imitation in the trial of Colonel Mitchell. He is not to be allowed to prove the truth of his charges. To prove what he said would only aggravate his offense, annoying still more the incompetents that he denounced and exposed.

OF THE WEEK

MUSIC AND SONG.

It is wonderful to contemplate the power of music and song. It has cheered and encouraged many a desponding heart when despondency and gloom gripped it, and has opened up the way to another effort.

Amid the most discouraging scenes of life, music has calmed the tempest of fear and opened up the avenue to peace and tranquility. When in mid-ocean, crippled beyond repair, with no hope at all that all would be saved from a watery grave when the Titanic went down, the strains of "Jesus Lover of My Soul" floated out over that scene which beggars description, and with death stalking aboard that disabled ship, a calmness reigned, bringing order out of chaos. A more superb setting could not be contemplated and executed. There stood strong, brave men side by side with feeble women and children, making every effort that those who were not able to take care of themselves should be accorded seats in the life boats, and there were not enough of them to accommodate all. All the while the band aboard kept up the music, playing anthems that would gird the soul to make the supreme effort, as hope was fleeing and death was a certainty.

It is possible that the music of that occasion, (which is harmony) made it possible that order might be preserved, and precious lives saved from a watery grave. Those brave souls who stood there giving orders that the highest efficiency might prevail, exemplified the highest courage and fortitude which can be imagined, and place them in a galaxy of heroes and heroines to which the world should ever pay homage.

Many of these who maintained such a calm under such trying circumstances, slept beneath the waves of that restless ocean, soon after the last spoken words fell from their lips.

On the field of battle where the roar of cannon and the rattle of musketry defied the stoutest hearts, the strains of some spirited composition of music would get the attention of the begrimed soldier, and he would make one more effort.

Music occupies a preferred place in the hearts of all. It inspires when inspiration is needed. It cheers when the heart is sad. It dispels the mists of doubt and uncertainty. It riffs the

REMOVING CINDERS FROM AN EYE

Submerge Eye in a Glass of Water, Then Blink Allowing the Intruding Object to Be Washed Away Easily.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

WHAT do you do for a sore eye? It all depends on what is wrong with the eye, because if a foreign body of some sort has entered it, there are a number of harmless things to do.

It is a pity that everybody isn't taught how dangerous it is to have the eye poked at by untrained fingers. It hurts so to have something in the eye that in the hope of relief you are ready to submit to anything.

I have seen hundreds of eyes which were wounded, and infected by awkward attempts at removal of a cinder. These efforts were made by well-meaning persons and usually in response to the appeal of the victim.

In every mill and factory there is somebody who is believed to possess exceptional skill in extracting cinders. You ought to examine some of these eyes afterward! The magnifying glass shows that the surface tissues have been scraped away and that an area a hundred times the size of the offending object has been denuded by the rough, even though tender-hearted, amateur surgeon.

The direct injury to the eye isn't the worst of it, either. The toothpick, sharpened match, hairpin, or handkerchief corner, may be none too clean. In any event there is frequently carried into the tissues the germs of pus production or other serious infection. Many an eye has been lost, or the sight destroyed, by manipulation of this sort. If you get a cinder in your eye, fill a perfectly clean glass with perfectly pure water. Bend over the top of the glass so that your eye is submerged in the water. Now wink rapidly for a few minutes.

Nine times out of ten this procedure will cause the foreign body to float out. It is loosened by the winking and the water prevents cutting of the lid or of the eyeball.

If this does not succeed and no body is present who can turn the lid, you need a real doctor. Cover your eye with a handkerchief and make your way to his office.

If there is much pain, cold water compresses will promote comfort. Covering both eyes helps, because when the vision is cut off the eyes are not moving about. In this way you avoid the scraping and cutting caused by the dragging of the foreign body across the delicate eye lid covering.

You must keep from rubbing the eye. That practice is sure to be shadows which hang so dense and heavy, and causes a ray of light and hope to penetrate their depths. It brings back hope when hope has fled. It's a balm for the wounded heart under the most trying circumstances and who knows, but that the melody of some of the grand old hymns which have been sung throughout the centuries, have been the occasion for the turning point in hundreds of lives, and they who keep their hearts and voices attuned to this divine melody, live constantly in an atmosphere of hope, and joy and love.

Hartselle News

Rev. Booser, a former Alabamian, though for the past eight years a resident of Kentucky, occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church last Sunday morning and evening. Rev. Booser came on invitation of the congregation, and it is very likely that he will receive a call to this church, which has been without a pastor for some weeks, following the resignation of Rev. G. C. Walker who accepted a call to a Birmingham church.

The subject of the morning discourse was the talents. From this as a text, the speaker delivered a beautiful sermon, full of helpfulness and Christian thought. It is quite probable that this minister will receive a call from the Baptist church at this place.

Rev. R. W. Anderson returned from Huntsville last Saturday, after attending the sessions of the North slight indisposition the pastor did Alabama Conference owing to a not occupy his pulpit the congregation worshipping with the congregation at the First Baptist church, at the morning service.

From every section comes the report that much cotton is seriously damaging in the field, and owing to the prevailing wet weather cannot be gathered. Much of this cotton is said to be on the ground, and is sprouting. This entails a great loss on the planter as the price for such cotton is low, and it is almost impossible to sell the seed after ginning. Heavy rains have come to this section during the past week, this week entering under threatening circumstances. Plenty of water here

Arlliss Points Out Whom To Blame If Stage Quality Low

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—If the stage is going to the dogs, and according to existing records it has been going that way for at least 200 years, it seems to George Arlliss, the actor that the only people who can be arraigned on suspicion are the public, the actor and the manager.

The public is most generally blamed, said Mr. Arlliss. Whenever any particularly inane play is produced, the students of the drama are apt to raise their high brows and say "This is the sort of thing the public wants nowadays."

"When anything unusually vicious attracts attention, we hear, 'This is what the public demands,'" Mr. Arlliss said. "The poor, long-suffering public! How can they demand any specific entertainment? If any one of the public knew what to demand he could become a theatrical manager and make a fortune. It would mean that he knew the public taste."

"The public does not know what to demand any more than I do. I have had a good deal of experience, but when an author asks what kind of a play I want, I have to confess that I do not know. I want a good play, that is all I can say. And that is what the public is continually saying. It wants the best that we can give it."

"If you will look over the list of the greatest successes the stage has had you will find that the public has taste, judgment and a nice sense of morality. The public is a gentleman and should be treated as such. But the public does not know what it wants until it gets it. It can, therefore, hardly be held responsible for the nature of the production. The actor is engaged by the manager and broadly speaking, has to do what he is told. The manager then would appear to be responsible for the guilty act."

"But who shall blame him? Who is going to cast the first stone? New York is the great producing center; the great mass of the theatergoers there are not a normal public, they are passing through; they are holiday-makers; their attitude of mind towards entertainment is likely to be quite different from that of a settled resident. The manager is in the business primarily to make money. Why not? He says, 'The public demands nudity. I give it to them.' He means that he places nude women on exhibition and the public comes to see them. But there will always be a public in New York for anything sensational. It is not the public; it is a public, an ephemeral public."

"Not long ago this public was attracted by shocking bad language such as had never before been spoken on our stage. Today the performers might swear till they were blue in the face and it would not be worth a dollar. Legs have had their day; and other anatomical attractions are going the way of all flesh. When they go the manager who has peddled these commodities will have nothing left to stand upon."

"That is where he has been commercially unwise. He has been running his New York theater as a sideshow at a fair. He has catered for that public and not for the public."

THEATRES

A powerful story and a remarkable cast make "Daddy's Gone a-Hunting," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayor picture, which is playing at the Princess Theater, one of the finest motion pictures ever shown.

A screen version of the famous stage play by Zoe Akins, this film is another triumph for Frank Borzage who has taken his place as one of the most brilliant directors.

Percy Marmont plays the role of Julian, the restless artist who goes a-hunting and Alice Joyce will delight her countless admirers as Edith, Julian's self-sacrificing wife.

Color is furnished by the lavish luxury and daring of the Folies Bergeres in Paris, in which hundreds of beautiful dancers appear, and in the

He has merely sought the 'nimble shilling.' He has built up no reputation that will be an asset to him throughout these great United States—as he might have done. My experience has taught me never to underrate the understanding of an audience, to give them credit for at least as much intelligence as I have myself and to go for the great mass of normal theater-goers of this country, rather than the seething crowd of amusement seekers that throng any metropolitan center."

The Mainstay of Business in Good Times or Bad

The steam transportation lines of the United States deliver the goods in fair weather or foul, under good business conditions and in seasons of less activity.

Where the merchant or jobber buys in small quantities necessitating frequent shipments (a condition prevailing largely in times of dull business), the railroads make it possible for business to continue and the public to be served. In times when merchandise is moving fast and business booming, peak loads of freight are transported without delay.

Just now the great trunk lines of the Nation are handling the greatest volume of freight in their history. The total carloading for the 36 weeks ending with September 5th amounted to 34,652,418 cars, an increase of 6.7% as compared with last year, and of 2% as compared with 1923. In the same 36 weeks, the L. & N. handled over 1,270,000 cars of freight, or an increase over 1924 of 8.3%. Ask any shipper if they are doing the job efficiently.

Morgan County High and Tuscumbia Hi Give Local Teams Thought For Week-end

Morgan County high school, ancient and renowned enemy of Albany high, and Tuscumbia high will be the guests of the cities this weekend while they are not busy stopping the attacks of Albany high and the Y. M. C. A. eleven. Morgan county high will battle Albany high at 3:15 o'clock Friday afternoon at Malone Park and the Tuscumbia folks will journey over for Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the Park for a whack at the Y. M. C. A. eleven.

Coach Alford said today that the Morgan County game is the one game of the season he has been pointing for, past records calling upon the local eleven to give the best possible in stopping the Morgan County lads. Morgan County has had a successful year thus far, having been crashed earthward by the Cullman Bears only. Morgan County comes this year on a better footing than when they invaded back in 1923. They are heavier than the local team and the loss of Spencer at fullback will be keenly felt by the Albany boys. However the local team is anticipating a victory and they are going to work their hearts out in an effort to bring home a victory.

Saturday afternoon Tuscumbia comes for a tilt with the Y. M. C. A. and should allow the Y. M. C. A. a brief breathing spell after four tough battles with which the local eleven led off in schedule. The Y. M. C. A. has failed to turn the trick of winning in their first four games though the only tilt they lost decisively was to Huntsville College. The team is in excellent condition following play last Friday on a mudsoaked field at Falkville when they went down in a last minute defeat 7-3. Grisham and Yarbrough will probably handle the ends this Saturday, the former showing against Howard College Reserves being alone a big drawing card. There were any number of fans who declared that he is one of the best men ever seen on any gridiron. His defensive work was the best ever witnessed here.

Tuscumbia will come here with a stronger eleven than the team that faced Albany high last Friday and lost. The eligibility rules will be disregarded and the local folks are expecting to play hosts to all the football talent that can be corralled in the Tri-City section.

Decatur high is the only eleven not to be seen in action locally. Friday, they will go to Guntersville to take on the high school at that point. Coach Grimes will have a better squad to draw from at this time than he placed before the onslaughts of the Arab high school choice last Friday. His regulars are in better condition and are anxious to redeem themselves by making the Guntersville folks step out for a win.

'BAMA STATES SOLE 'HOPE' FOR TITLE

Tide Meets Kentucky Saturday In Bitter Competition

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. Nov. 4.—Left alone in the spotlight by the elimination of Auburn, the Alabama Crimson Tide is now the State's sole contender for Southern Conference honors this fall. Auburn was stricken from the list of conference crown eligibles last Saturday, when the Green Wave of Tulane took the Tigers in tow.

Alabama, as one of the more logical pretenders to the conference title, faces a tremendous task Saturday, when the Wildcats from Kentucky must be reckoned with. On paper this game can be degenerated into a cinch for the Tide, but on the playing field it is something else again. The Tide is never sure of defeating Kentucky. Whatever the odds, the lads from the land of mint-juleps have always here-to-fore made a real football game of their engagements with 'Bama. This year promises to be no exception from the seasons that have gone before. Birmingham is the arena.

Auburn also has a classic scheduled for the weekend of the seventh

Playing Georgia at Columbus, as they have for many years, the Tigers of Morey are due for a real battle. This game is and always has been a toss up affair. Only when the final whistle blows will the victor know that the game has been won.

For their first part of the present season, it seemed at times that the Georgia Bulldogs was due to romp this year. This outlook was dimmed by a defeat by Virginia, cleared by a win over Vandy and then blurred very confusingly by a Bulldog loss to Tennessee and the strength displayed against Tulane by Auburn. The next result is chaos, as far as picking a winner is concerned.

Friday was due to be playing day for the other teams of the state. Howard drew Millsaps for this date, the Howardites playing at home for their last time until the game with Birmingham-Southern. The Methodist Panthers go to Gadsden, there to mix it with Chattanooga.

Both of these S. I. A. A. scraps are practically undroppable. Howard is given an even chance with Millsaps, which team is rated as one of the strongest elevens in the Association. The Panther is better than Chattanooga on paper, having shown brighter against Normal than did Howard. And Howard trimmed Chattanooga by a scant margin of a last-minute field goal.

Nearly everybody maltreated the dope bucket last weekend. Alabama let the Mississippi Aggies tip the pail over at a precarious angle by barely eking out a 6-0 win over the lads from A. & M. Auburn gave the container a lusty kick by holding Tulane to two touchdowns, while Birmingham-Southern did the same thing in running up a 33-0 margin over Normal. Howard alone was content to let things ride as they were doped, winning over the Mississippi College Choctaws 10-6.

The A. & M. homecoming affair at Tuscaloosa proved what critics have been saying of the Tide all season. Slowed up by a bog of clinging consistency, the fleet backs of Alabama failed to do their stuff and it was left to Pooley Hubert to win the game with his line bucks.

Without Hubert, there is nobody who could say what the Tide would have done. They may even have been put out of their present high position in the conference, for A. & M.

was out for blood and they very nearly got it. The net result is the conclusion that given a dry field, the Tide will romp on most anybody's football team, while a too-wet gridiron is arsenic.

The fight displayed by Auburn against Tulane justified the faith placed in the team backers. It is true that Tulane was slowed up by the mud, but the Tiger did some pretty offensive stuff that raised their stock considerably. They played hob with the vaunted Tulane line and pretty well stopped the great Green offensive, considering the odds on dope in favor of the Greenies.

Birmingham-Southern's top heavy score against Normal was rather unexpected in the light of the game played by the Teachers against Howard. The mud seemingly had no terror for the Panther backs, which was a condition of upset in itself.

Against the Choctaws, booting one Howard showed a great battle dropkick and scoring a touchdown after a break. The Mississippians tallied their pointer through the air, a route to victory often used by the Bulldogs, who are adept in the passing game.

Timber is getting more valuable every day. Do not waste it.
